DESTINATION PARADISE

Xixi National Wetland Park is located in the west of Hangzhou city. It's 6 km away from downtown and 5 km away from West Lake. The history of Xixi dates from the Han Dynasty (B.C.202-A.D.220). It experiences its growth period over Tang Dynasty (A.D.618-907) and Song Dynasty (A.D.960-1279). Ming Dynasty (A.D.1368-1644) and Qing Dynasty (A.D.1616-1911) are boom time period. Xixi use to cover an area of approximately 60 km<sup>2</sup> while there is 11.5 km to be preserved since 2005. There are three main roads which named as "Fu Causeway", "Green Causeway" and "Shou Causeway" and ten different landscapes in the park. Xixi National Wetland Park is the first wetland park that combines the features of urban wetland, farming wetland and cultural wetland together, as well as a scenic spot of AAAAA in China.

DESIGNED TO INSPIRE

Influenced by the rich historical and cultural background of Jiangnan's ancient cities, the combination of dark grey natural clay roof tiles and white painted gable-end walls, complete with intricately carved eaves and sculpted roof ridges form the familiar and graceful profile of a traditional Jiangnan water village. The visual axis begins with a reflecting pond in the entry courtyard through to an elevated view of the grounds from the hotel lobby to create an impactful sense of arrival.

BANYAN TREE HANGZHOU

Integrate within the eco-rich Xixi National Wetland Park, Banyan Tree Hangzhou is reminiscent of a quaint Jiangnan-Style town, surrounded by channels and lakes. The distinctive Jiangnan-inspired style is echoed throughout the design and architecture of the resort, blending harmoniously with the beauty of the wetlands.

A portrait of oriental charm, the resort is a 50-minute drive from Hangzhou Xiaoshan International Airport and 15 minutes away from Hangzhou city and the picturesque West Lake.
